THE HARVARD SUMMER SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY.

ELEVENTH SESSION, July 7-22, 1909.

Present Religious Conditions and Prospects.

Although the present time seems to show a marked decline in religion, there are those who believe that this is more apparent than real, and that now, as often in the past, lack of interest in institutional religion is accompanied by manifestations in contemporary social, scientific, and philosophical movements, of a fresh and vital religious spirit, which presents new duties to the Christian Church, and summons it to large opportunities. It is to an inquiry into the grounds of this belief that the Summer School of 1909 will be devoted.

In view of this purpose, the courses offered fall into four main divisions:

- I. Causes and Illustrations of Religious Fluctuations.
  1. General Causes of Variation in Religious Interest. Professor TOY.
  2. Historical Illustrations of Religious Decline and Recovery. Professor EMERTON.
- II. Present Religious Conditions.

  3. In England. Mr. MELLOR.
  4. In Germany. Mr. LEMPP.
